Dr. G. W. Jensen Is Paid Signal Honor at the F. F. A. Dinner

One hundred and twenty fathers and sons sat down together at the Seventeenth Annual Father and Son banquet sponsored by Antioch chapter of the Future Farmers of America, Friday evening in the Antioch High school cafeteria.

Each year a Certificate of Honorary Recognition is presented by the organization to some person who has done meritorious work in the field of agriculture. This year the Future Farmers conferred this honor on Dr. G. W. Jensen, who has served this community since 1919 as veterinarian.

His certificate of recognition was presented to him at the banquet. At the same time it was pointed out that Dr. Jensen's services to dairymen of this community have materially aided them in building up disease-free herds, and he has given his services to a number of scientific and civic organizations.

Movies of Ag. Students
Motion pictures of the high school vocational agriculture students at work on their various projects were shown. "Clean-Up Week" to Start Here April 30

Next week, commencing Tuesday, will be observed as "Clean-up Week" in Antioch, by proclamation of Village President George B. Bartlett.

All Antioch residents are asked to co-operate by gathering up rubbish from their yards or unwanted material stored in homes, garages or other buildings, and place it in containers where it can be picked up by the village truck.

The truck will commence picking up and hauling away material on Tuesday, and will continue until the task is finished. The Mayor announces, "Clean Up Week" is being observed partly as a means of stimulating interest in the general improvement of the appearance of the town, and partly as a medium for removing fire hazards created when waste material is stored in buildings for later disposal.

The use of the village truck for hauling away such material is designed to make householders' tasks easier in cutting down fire risks.

Business people are being particularly asked to co-operate. It is pointed out by Mayor Bartlett that an attractive civic appearance is a definite business asset to any community visited by a large number of tourists, and particularly so in the case of Antioch, with its beautiful surrounding lake territory.

Jim Farley—Candidate

As a political manager, New York's "Tammany Jim" Farley has few peers in the nation. Not even his enemies will deny that after he deserted his old friend Al Smith and became front man for Franklin D. Roosevelt he did a superb job of getting the nomination for Roosevelt and then electing him.

Neither friend nor enemy will deny either that, once ensconced in Washington, Farley has maneuvered the tremendous spending to build the most powerful political machine in the history of America based upon the old Tammany doctrine, "we feed 'em and we vote 'em."

Now the question arises, does this background and experience qualify a man to be President. Truly "Tammany Jim" has been Postmaster General for seven years. But everyone knows that this has been incidental to his political business and he has dropped into the Postoffice only occasionally to issue a new memorial stamp.

The anti-New Dealers within the Democratic party seemingly are falling into the same trap as many Republicans—seeking only a man who might conceivably be nominated without thought as to whether he would make a good president. Passing over men of the type of Senator Byrd, or Secretary Hull, they turn their quest for a man—any man—who seems to have political sex-appeal.

But don't American problems run deeper than that today? Eleven million unemployed, ghastly farm prices and a perilous international situation demand that both parties put forward men who, upon a record of competence and experience, might be expected to find solutions where President Roosevelt's New Deal has failed. "Slick politicians" are not in order.

We suspect it will be a statesman and not a politician for whom American voters will be looking when nominations are made in June.

Common Purpose Promotes Harmony

The harmony that prevailed Monday night at the organization meeting of the Lake County Republican Central Committee was inspiring, and was a true object lesson indicating what can be done by a loyal group, giving unselfish service and working for a common purpose. The common purpose in this instance is the overthrow of the corrupt administration at Springfield and the defeat of the arrogant, wasteful and bungling New Deal in Washington.

The precinct committeemen wisely chose William M. Marks to serve another term as chairman. Marks has made a good chairman because he has wanted nothing for himself or for his fellow officials, and has given most liberally of his time and talents to the promotion of political principles he believes to be just and right and decent.

If he plays politics, it is for the common weal and he is shrewd enough to sense motives in the acts of opponents to the cause of just government. His leadership has been wise, energetic and capable.

Ickes Nominated — for Oblivion

If and when the people of the United States reject the New Deal, one of the greatest satisfactions to a majority of thinking citizens will be the knowledge that Harold L. (Decisions-while-you-wait) Ickes, White House sounding board, will be retired to private life. Aside from the ubiquitous Madam Perkins, no one in the official family has gotten under the skins of the American populace like "Honorable Harold."

The Secretary of the Interior seems to feel that it is his mission in life to be as obnoxious as possible and to pop off against all and sundry Republicans at the drop of the hat, forgetting, we fear, that he himself is an erstwhile Republican, something that party has tried to live down.

ISAIAH COMFORTS AN AFFLICTED PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 40:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.—Psalm 46:1.

"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith the Lord," knowing as He alone can the great heart sob of sorrow, pain, and disappointment which arises to Him from His people everywhere. No study of God's Word which omits His tender word of comfort is in any sense complete. No teacher or preacher who fails to bring that message to his people is declaring the full counsel of God. No more appropriate passage could be chosen for presenting that truth than Isaiah 40.

The prophet spoke to a people who were experiencing the bitter treatment of their enemies. They were facing the devastation of their country and the deportation of its people into captivity. In such a desperate day one might say that there could be no true word of comfort, but there was, and that word may well encourage us to look up in this our confusing day. The Comforter of Israel is ready to be our comforter.

I. The Source of Comfort (vv. 1-5).
"God is our refuge and strength" (Ps. 46:1). "Behold your God" (Isa. 40:9). "Comfort ye, saith your God" (v. 1). He is "the God of all comfort" (II Cor. 1:3). The astonishing thing is that mankind is so prone to seek comfort elsewhere, turning to God only when everything else fails rather than going to Him first of all.

His comfort is abiding, for it rests on a removal of the source of all pain and sorrow, namely sin. The day of Judah's comfort is to come when her "iniquity is pardoned" (v. 2). That is also the first step for us to take in seeking comfort, to repent and forsake our sin, seeking pardon in Christ.

The one who brings us God's comfort is Jesus Christ. Verses 3 to 5 speak of His coming. John the Baptist was the voice and it was Jesus for whom the way was to be prepared (see Luke 3:4-6). Jesus is the Lord Jehovah, God Himself, the Son of God, and the bringer of God's comfort to men's troubled hearts. It is He who is revealed in this passage in all of His glory and grace.

II. The Need of Comfort (vv. 6-8).
Man thinks he is great, wise, powerful and able to take care of himself. William Henley expressed it in his "Invictus."

"I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul."
But God says, "Man is as grass," and declares that when "the spirit of the Lord bloweth" on him he fades and withers. We know that God's witness is true. Boost as he will in the hour of prosperity and strength, man knows in his heart that when he faces the real issues of life he is utterly impotent, needy and undone. Gerald Massey spoke more truly than William Henley when he said,

"Surrounded by unnumbered foes Against my soul the battle goes!"
The man who has come to the end of himself and who realizes that there is neither in him nor in his fellow mortals the strength to meet life's struggles is ready for the ministry of God in Christ, forgiving, cleansing, strengthening and comforting. He has come to realize that "the grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever" (v. 8).

III. The Way of Comfort (vv. 9-11).
Good tidings were proclaimed even in that dark hour of Judah's history. We have good tidings for our day as well. Let us declare them from the mountaintops. Lift up your voice with strength and do not be afraid! Here is something to shout about, "Behold your God!"

The prophet's holy enthusiasm had two excellent grounds. First, he tells us that God is strong. He "will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him." Here is comfort with assurance because God is strong. He is also loving and tender. His strong arm is used to gather the lambs to His bosom and to tenderly lead His sheep. Gentleness is the attribute not of weakness but of strength. God's strong men and women are His gentlemen and gentlewomen. They, like their Lord, are loving and kind, using their strength not to destroy or to impress others, but to help the weak, to bring comfort in the name of Christ.

Faith of the Future

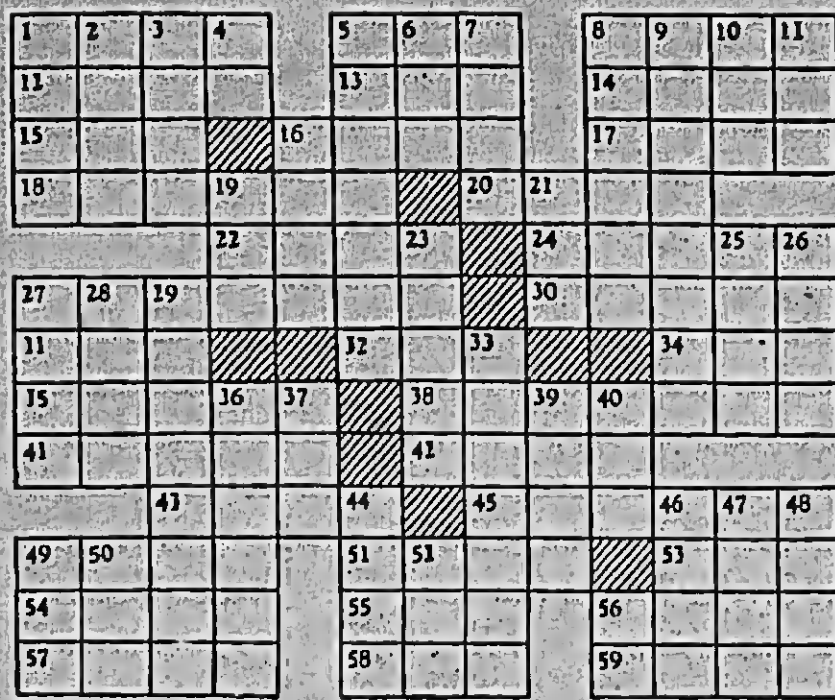

The faith of the future, like the faith of the present and the faith of the past, will in its essence be swift. It will be faith in the goodness of things—faith that the world is governed for good.—Sir Francis Younghusband.

The sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee; but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory.—Isaiah 60:19.

SWINE SANITATION A VITAL NEED

All too often we hear someone advise the practice of "Swine Sanitation," without giving specific details on just how to perform this all important phase of husbandry.

First of all, hog houses should have smooth, hard-surfaced floors that can be easily swept and washed down with hot lye water. Removable floors are especially desirable. The walls and roof to prevent "job-lollies" after each rain. Holes under old corn cribs or other buildings should be boarded shut to keep young pigs from dusty, dark hideouts. If finances permit, a cement feeding platform for adult swine is a good investment.

Old straw piles may harbor the May beetle grubs which carry thornhead worms, while manure piles may spread pig lungworms through infested earth worms. Partly decomposed horse or cattle carcasses or their skeletons may carry deadly disease germs to growing pigs.

The "hog pullman"—a good way to transport pigs to clean ground and avoid contamination.

ceilings should be free from dust, dirt and cob webs. Sows should be confined and the udders washed with rich soap suds just before farrowing and as soon as possible, both sows and pigs should be moved to clean pasture where individual or colony houses have been cleaned and disinfected prior to their arrival. A common oversight is failure to scrub feed and water troughs before they are moved from old lots to clean pastures.

Mudholes should be filled around automatic waterers, and low places fenced deep dust in hog sheds is one of the most prolific sources of pneumonia and other trouble. Such sheds should have the floor spaded out and refilled with clean clay, tamped and rolled.

Surveys by government field workers have clearly shown that pigs raised under sanitary surroundings gained as much as a fourth of a pound per day more, and consumed less feed than pigs on unclean premises. This alone should be argument enough for good swine sanitation to say nothing of losses from bacteria and parasites.

Decorative Radiators

Radiators which are not recessed and covered with shields constitute one of the most serious decorative problems in the home. In spite of the discussion regarding the heating efficiency of painted radiators, it still holds true that the most popular treatment of these heating units is painting them the color of the woodwork. In treating radiators as an integral part of the wall surface against which they are placed, the units become less conspicuous, and this is regarded as desirable by most home owners.

U. S. Salaries

According to Collier's, the captain of one New Yorker's private yacht draws a larger salary than the master of the Queen Mary, the colored manager of a Harlem dance hall is paid more than the governor of Pennsylvania, and a Midwesterner receives more money as the president of a local musicians' union than Mr. Roosevelt receives as President of the United States.

Turkish Headgear

Abdul Medjid, a progressive sultan of Turkey, forced his subjects to wear the fez in place of the turban, which was regarded as a symbol of conservatism. The progressive Republic of Turkey forced the people to adopt western headgear in place of the fez, a symbol of the past. However, Turkish peasants still wear hats resembling the long-prohibited turban.

BRISTOL WOMAN GIVES RADIO INTERVIEW

Mrs. A. P. Matthisen, secretary of the Antioch-Bristol Baha'i group and member of the National Baha'i Radio committee, was interviewed over WRJN of Racine on Monday of this week on the symbolism of the world famous Baha'i Temple in Wilmette. This was the first of a series of radio talks and interviews to be given over this station each Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

One of the interesting questions answered in this radio interview was the explanation of why the number nine is used so much throughout the building. Mrs. Matthisen explained that it is a symbol. "The Temple itself viewed from an aeroplane," she said, "is a huge nine pointed star. The nine doors with their walks leading to them can be said to symbolize the nine great religions of the world. If a person from each of these religions should start down these nine paths—as they start they are quite a distance apart—but as they approach the Temple they come closer and closer together, finally all meeting in the Temple of Worship. It is a symbol of the "Oneness of God," the "Oneness of Religion," the "Oneness of all Mankind"—the basic principles of the Baha'i Faith, for just as the number nine contains all numbers leading to it, so the Baha'i teachings include the fundamental teachings of all religion. Truth is one."

The weekly discussion held in the Matthisen home each Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock will be devoted to the subject of the week's broadcast, during the series.

The subject for next week's broadcast will be "Progressive Revelation."

The Observer

We noticed quite a few of the gents as well as the gals hanging their chins out of windows along the Main drag Wed. aft. in hopes of glimpsing a bridal couple in a return trip down the street, so they could see how the happy pair looked. Proving that men must take an interest in those things too, or something. Here we always thought those frothy descriptions of a bride's costume were intended for feminine perusal only. It seems we must have been wrong.

We see where J. B. Rotnour's players are going to close their season next Thursday evening. Sort of an anachronism—a stock company still treading the boards and going strong in these days of movie all-prevalence. And the Rotnour plays are not so bad, either, as plays go—they play 'em straight and really get into the spirit of the thing—ranging from old-fashioned mellerdramers to brand new offerings.

Seems to be a regular outbreak of "goofy" drivers just lately. The one that really had us a bit jittery Tuesday, was a female driver who sneaked up quickly on the gravel along the pavement to pass us on the wrong side (this was over the line in Wisconsin, where the law is again right-hand passing) and having popped out of nowhere without even a warning toot, shot up on the concrete just in front of us. She turned off toward Pleasant Prairie but we don't know if she lives there. We're cherishing her license number along with a couple of others while we debate what to do with 'em... whether to let some of the authorities give a little warning, or what. After all, the cops can't be everywhere at once, and it's up to all of us, as good citizens and also folks with a fair amount of concern for the well-being of our own selves and families, to try to pay at least a half-way decent regard to the rules of the road and to do all we can to avoid contributing toward minor accidents... to say nothing of tragedies like that in which several young people lost their lives up in Minnesota a few days ago.

● Here's a quiz with "easy pick-ins," for in every question you have a choice of four answers. Simply indicate your answer choice in space provided, check for correctness, then tally score for your rating.

Faith of a Future. The faith of the future, like the faith of the present and the faith of the past, will in its essence be sweet. It will be faith in the goodness of things—faith that the world is governed for good. Sir Francis Youngblood.

of the village board, at a meeting held by the firemen Tuesday evening.

Judge Perry L. Persons recently re-appointed Clarence Crowley as trustee for Illinois Fire District No. 1, which has its headquarters at Antioch.

Gas Truck Catches Fire.
A tight brake-band that caught fire on a 500-gallon gasoline truck owned by the Liberty Oil company, Tuesday afternoon near Hunt's service station on Highways 173 and 59, led to a hurry call for the Antioch firemen.

The fire was extinguished with negligible damage.

Sunday afternoon the Antioch firemen were called to the Casterton Brothers farm on Green Bay road west of Winthrop Harbor when a barn caught fire and was burned to the ground with a loss of $3,000. Of this, $1,400.47 was covered by insurance.

The Gurnee, Bristol and Pleasant Prairie fire departments were also called, and assisted in preventing the conflagration from spreading to another barn in which grain and feed were stored.

The blaze is believed to have been started when children playing in the barn lit some matches and lay stored there caught fire. The children escaped unhurt.

Copy Antioch Truck.
The Silver Lake Fire department is having a tank truck constructed similar to the 1,000-gallon one owned by the Antioch department.

Peter Pirsch, head of the Pirsch company of Kenosha, nationally known manufacturers of fire-fighting equipment, inspected the Antioch truck recently preliminary to making that for Silver Lake.

The Antioch tank truck was constructed from a large tank purchased from an oil company and mounted on a truck body. It has proved useful in fighting fires located at a distance from water mains or other direct sources of water.

The Lake Villa department has also been considering getting a similar truck.

Pirsch complimented the Antioch men for keeping the recent fire at the Antioch Milling company confined to the interior of the mill and preventing it from spreading to other buildings.

'Rebecca' at the Kenosha

The producer of "Gone with the Wind," David O. Selznick, winner of ten Academy awards, brings his new important triumph of stirring entertainment, "Rebecca," to the Kenosha Theatre screen Friday for a four day engagement. Starring in "Rebecca" are Lawrence Olivier, hero of "Wuthering Heights," and Joan Fontaine, in her sensational starring debut. The associate attraction is "Curtain Call" with Alan Mowbray, Barbara Read and Helen Vinson.

If you have trouble teaching your chicks to find the heat a little circular fence around the brooder stays and about 3 feet from the canopy's edge will avoid the chicks close to the heat and avoid corner pile-up. Hardware cloth 12 inches wide is a very satisfactory material for this fence. The length needed can be calculated by simply multiplying the desired diameter by 3. It is always wise to add 4 or 5 feet to this to allow for expansion.

Be particular about the litter. Moldy litter is a possible source of brooder pneumonia.

Add fresh feed often. This encourages chicks to eat more feed, which automatically helps growth and uniform development.

A piece of white muslin tacked on the outside of the window frame of the brooder house will allow fresh air to enter, will prevent snow from blowing in, will avoid strong gusts of wind from fanning the fire, and will not shut out much light. It is recommended that the windows be hinged at the bottom, and that they swing in to open.

All-night brooder house lights are becoming very popular. An 8 to 10 watt electric bulb, or a dim lantern light, is protection against crowding and the chicks can get a drink of, or a light lunch if they so desire.

Heat is important for baby chicks! Hang a thermometer about six inches from the hover and about four inches from the floor. Test the brooder stove carefully before chicks arrive. Operate it several days to be sure it is working. In tip-top shape. Keep the temperature about 92 degrees for the first two, or three days, and gradually lower to 80 or 85 by the end of the second week.

Several kinds of litter may be used. Peat moss, soft wood shavings are possibly most popular. Both are light enough to let the droppings sift through. Litter should be stirred every day or two and fresh litter added every three or four weeks. In some localities clean wheat straw is the popular litter. If used, all chaff should be removed.

Feed hoppers should be cleaned at least once a week, and drinking fountains every day. Scrub thoroughly so that all particles of feed dropped by the birds into the water will be removed. Two measuring spoons of Purina Chlorena Powder to three gallons of water may be used to disinfect both the water fountains and the feed hoppers. Feed hoppers must be thoroughly dried after washing so that feed will not become wet when new feed is added to hoppers.

After chicks are put in the brooder house, starting mash becomes the important thing. Every chick-raiser is interested in getting the best kind of starting mash he can buy. He wants a complete starting mash that contains all of the feed elements in the right proportions for well-rounded development. It must contain those strength-giving and health-giving vitamins which help build a resistance against disease, making chicks easier to raise.

A scientifically built starting mash, tested by thousands of chicks under actual farm conditions, is offered locally as Purina Startena. It is not just one man's idea of what's best for a chick. Long years of research and actual experimentation have gone into the making of this well-known baby chick starter which is used each spring by thousands of poultrymen. Now Startena has been further improved by the adding of a new exclusive ingredient—Puriflavin. This contains vitamin G (flavin), which is an important growth factor for chicks and pullets. Puriflavin is richer in vitamin G than other known commercial flavin sources.

At three weeks of age, chicks are or should be about three to four times as heavy as they were when a day old. At this time the feeder space should be doubled, or supply two inches per chick; and add another water fountain, or supply about one-half inch watering space per chick.

Chicks should be taught to roost as soon as possible. When chicks are three or four weeks old, strips may be set up for them to roost on. About a one-inch mesh wire netting should be placed beneath the strips so that chicks cannot get under the roosts into the droppings. Some poultrymen have their roosts hinged to the side of the house, eight or ten inches above the floor.

Expansion Joints

Severe variations in temperature sometimes cause concrete work to expand and contract to the point of cracking. To prevent this breakage, expansion joints can be used in all concrete work of the home. Two of the several types available are those which consist of two layers of felt between which is interposed an asphaltic composition, and those which are of resilient sponge rubber.

War Clouds Gather in Balkans As Fleets Mass in Far East; British Troops Land in Norway

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR: 1,900-Mile Front

Roughly, as the bomber flies, it is 1,900 miles from Narvik, Norway, to the Dardanelles of the Near East. World War II has spread itself across every mile of that great front. Nations not yet actually involved in military activity are bristling with preparation of defense, should the next bomb fall on their homeland.

Southern Exposure

Fleets of five nations—Turkey, France, Italy, England and Russia—all moving under strict secret orders, have taken up key positions along those strategic straits—the Dardanelles. When Italian warships moved out for what Mussolini called "customary spring maneuvers," British and French naval units assembled for "counter measures" by taking up more advantageous positions along the coast of Greece. In the Black sea, the Russian navy was reported to have laid hundreds of mines in "the right spots."

Neutral nations of southeastern Europe believed that such display of naval force foreshadowed the spread of war. Accordingly, Rumania placed her small navy in charge of all ports along the river Danube and the Black sea. With a threatened small crop of wheat, the Rumanians cut off grain supplies to Germany but the senate provisionally accepted a government bill giving Germany a 30-year lease on 100,000 acres of badly needed timber. It was evident that King Carol was trying desperately to retain the good graces of the great Nazi war machine.

Bulgaria, Greece, Yugoslavia, and Turkey, fearing a repetition of the fatal infiltration of Nazis into Norway, had special police launch wide-spread investigations of all resident Germans.

Northern Exposure

While Norwegians pondered the strange mystery, treason and conspiracy that made their native capital, Oslo, such easy mark for the cunning coup of the Germans, the British were blasting their way into the northern harbor of Narvik. The British and French claimed to have landed expeditionary forces at that point and 2,000 German troops were said to be retreating toward Sweden. But if the allies were progressing satisfactorily in the north of Norway, the Nazis were being equally successful in the south. Positions around Oslo were solidified and through use of a clever ruse it was reported that German troops had reached Storlien Heights, three miles from the Swedish border—thus succeeding in virtually cutting Norway in two.

British bombers were busy at two key points along the Norwegian coast. At Stavanger, held by the Germans, the English flyers made at least seven raids, attempting to destroy the air base there. It is considered to be the only efficient Norwegian field for large-scale attacks on the British Isles. Bombs were also rained on Trondheim, for here too, the Germans held a vital air base.

It looked like the big battle of the Norwegian campaign would come when German forces moving north from Oslo and Bergen would meet British and Norwegian forces moving south from Narvik.

NEUTRALS: Pony Boy

Invoking strictest censorship and policing every section of the nation, Netherlands officials were on the alert for any "Trojan horse" activity on the part of Germany. Rumor had it that the Nazis were planning a coup in Holland similar to the one which fooled the Norwegians. Former commander of the nation's army, Jankeer W. Roell, told a national youth meeting that persons who had plans for a Nazi puppet government should be hanged—"The bullet," he said, "is too great an honor."

ASIA:

Dutch Treat?

While Secretary of State Hull was warning the world to maintain the status quo in the Dutch East Indies (see below) British and French forces in the Far East were on the lookout for anything that might even resemble so much as an attempt on the part of Japan to seize those coveted islands. Earlier, Japan's government itself had expressed a desire that the islands be left alone even though the Netherlands were invaded by Nazis. Neutral observers in the Orient, however, foresaw the possibility of Japan allying itself with Germany, taking the islands as first share of the spoils should Hitler march toward The Hague.

POLITICS:

Accent on Youth

Selection of 33-year-old Harold Stassen, governor of Minnesota, as the keynote speaker for the Republican National convention to be held in Philadelphia, June 24, was hailed by G. O. P. leaders everywhere as an accent on youth and "liberalism." Named permanent chairman (subject to the convention's approval) was Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts.

Sometimes mentioned as a presidential possibility himself, Stassen is unable to consider making the bid for he is too young, the Constitution requiring a candidate to be 35.

Elected governor in 1938 he has been busily engaged at introducing "liberal reforms" into his native state. He is a candidate for re-election in next fall's contest. Joe Martin is expected to provide the experience needed at the convention. He is completing his first term as Republican leader in the house and is serving his eighth term in congress.

HOME FRONT:
Status Quo
Secretary of State Hull informed the world at large that the Netherlands East Indies in the south Pacific were to be left strictly alone, should the Dutch become a party to Europe's conflict. With respect to Japan to state the position of the United States with respect to the islands (which furnish America with vital supplies of rubber and tin) Hull stated: "Intervention in the domestic affairs of the Netherlands Indies . . . would be prejudicial to the cause of stability, peace and security . . . in the entire Pacific area."

CONGRATULATIONS:

Mother 1940 Style

Selected as the "American Mother of 1940," Mrs. Edith Graham Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., widow of the famous surgeon, Charles H. Mayo, said, "the honor just scares me." Mother of eight children, five of whom are living, Mrs. Mayo has been asked to represent the nation's mothers in New York on Mother's day, Sunday, May 12. The selection was made by the American Mothers' National committee of the Golden Rule foundation.

Smile-of-the-Week

And "Thank-You-of-the-Week" were both presented to President Roosevelt at the White House, as Dr. K. P. Chen (above), Chinese purchasing agent, called to express the gratitude of his country for $45,000,000 in credits made available to China by the United States since 1923.

NAVY:

Boomlet

Senate support was growing for building a United States navy second to none after Admiral Harold R. Stark appeared before the committee on naval affairs to recommend a 25 per cent expansion of the fleet. The construction proposed by the admiral would cost some $3,480,000,000.

Over a billion dollars per year would be necessary to keep up a fleet the size recommended. At present the senators are not worrying about where the money will come from as the current legislation merely authorizes construction, does not provide the funds.

Asked if he thought the United States faces a naval emergency, Admiral Stark replied, "In my opinion, an emergency exists when our relative position is continually growing weaker, as it is now."

BUSINESS:

Cross Currents

Traditionally difficult to judge in presidential election year, business this year is following no specific pattern. While prominent business indices showed business to be a bit below last month and a bit above last year, financial reports of many major U. S. business firms were reported for the first quarter of 1940. In almost every case neat gains were evident.

Operating revenues of American Telephone & Telegraph company were up; Anaconda Copper tripled its net earnings as compared to the first three months of 1939; Shell Oil reported a sharply higher net profit and even the "problem-child" railroad companies showed substantial increases in revenue.

Even creditors of one of the bankrupt Insull utilities firms learned that they would receive an additional "dividend" because of collections made from stock subscribers.

Carnegie Steel corporation announced a vast expansion program to increase tin plate production at the cost of "several millions of dollars." A. T. & T. (see above) also forecast a huge expansion in construction work.

CENSUS:

100,000,000th

Still ringing doorbells and ferreting out information, Uncle Sam's census enumerators counted the 100,000,000th American, with about 30,000,000 to go. Actual counting was expected to be completed within a week, but the bigger job of tabulating and compiling the information obtained will take months and in some cases years. Totals for states and the nations should be available during the summer. Near Zanesville, Ohio, one footsore enumerator claimed he had made 11 unsuccessful trips to the same house. Local wits suggested that possibly some of Mr. Tabey's (Rep. Charles Tabey of New Hampshire, arch-opponent of the income question in the census questionnaire) relatives lived in the district.

MISCELLANY:

Butter Up

Play Ball!—The great American game was off to a flying start as both major baseball leagues began the six-months season of official play. Opening days saw good crowds at all contests, despite unusually poor weather. Bob Feller, ex-Iowa farm boy, pitching for the Cleveland Indians, made baseball history in Chicago, when he twirled a no-hit no-run game against the Chicago White Sox. It was the first time this feat had ever been accomplished on opening day.

Birthday—Celebrating its fiftieth birthday the Pan American Union heard President Roosevelt tell the 21 American republics that they must be prepared to meet force with force. He spoke before the governing board of the body. Uncle Sam appeared to be standing pat on the Monroe Doctrine.

Strike—In the Canadian Seaman's union strike against the steamship companies at Toronto, both sides were standing pat. A $10 per month wage increase for Great Lakes sailors was the chief demand of the strikers.

GROWING TURKEYS REQUIRE A WELL- BALANCED PROGRAM

Proper Housing, Handling, Sanitation and Feeding Necessary for Best Results.

"Many factors enter to make the best turkey prices. Among them are keeping the birds away from their droppings; supplying good clean feed and water that can't be contaminated; and prevention of flies," says G. P. Plaisance, head of the Turkey Department of Purina Mills.

Plaisance recommends wire floors to keep the birds away from their droppings. One can either keep young poults in baby chick batteries the first three weeks or build wire floors in the brooder house. To keep the wire floors clean, Plaisance advises that they be swept daily with a stiff floor brush to remove any droppings that might adhere. At the same time, disinfect by dipping the brush at intervals in a 3% solution of Purina-Cre-so-fee.

Wire Under Roost

For birds on range, Plaisance recommends the use of woven wire under the roosts. If not possible, then the droppings should be removed often. It doesn't take much time, but it is very important for healthy, thrifty turkeys. Lime used under the roosts helps prevent fly maggots. Apply lime twice a week.

Clean the water troughs daily with Purina Chlorox solution because a turkey is the sort of bird to get disease easily. Plaisance feels. Supply good clean feed and water in troughs and fountains constructed so they cannot be contaminated with the turkey's droppings.

Plenty of eating and drinking space is required by growing turkeys, both in brooder house and on range.

Plains. Too, it's advisable that the water fountains and feed troughs be moved every second or third day to a new place on the range a few feet distant.

Flies can be a cause of turkeys not gaining weight rapidly. See that all places where flies are apt to propagate are removed. Flies of manure are fertile places for flies to breed. Lime will prevent fly maggots to mature. Go after the flies early. One killed early in the season will prevent thousands later!

Feed Requirements

Perhaps more important than all other factors for successful turkey production is the ration fed. Most people agree that a turkey needs the best in starting feeds for the first few weeks. Many after that turn them loose to get all of the grasshoppers, crickets and loose grain they can pick up. This is a short-sighted practice, according to Fast growth and well-balanced growth of turkeys from starting to finishing are necessary in the production of prime, tender meat.

Plaisance. He recommends the feeding of a nationally recognized growing feed during this period, preferably Purina Turkey Growing Chow, so the poults will continue to grow rapidly.

During the five weeks finishing period, Plaisance recommends a special fattening ration to make them plump and smooth. It comes in checker form called Purina Turkey-Checker Fatena Checkers. "If the turkeys have been on a mash form of growing feed," says Plaisance, "start adding Fatena Checkers five weeks before market. Within a week they will eat straight Checkers, giving them four weeks to develop a plump and smooth carcass. If they have been on a checker form of growing feed, change abruptly to this special fattening feed five weeks before the turkeys go to market."

World's Smallest Nations

The three smallest nations in the world in area are the Principality of Monaco, which has an area of eight square miles; the Republic of San Marino, with 38 square miles, and the Principality of Liechtenstein with 65 square miles.

NAMES in the news . . .

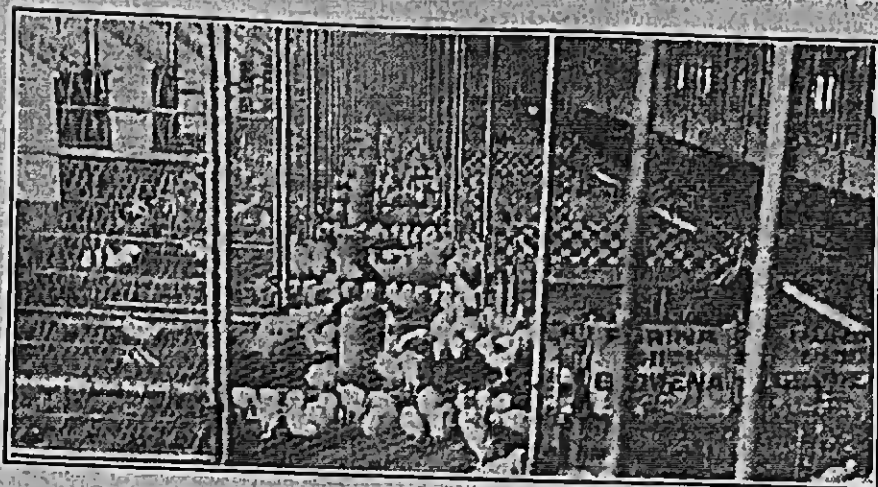

¶ In Louisiana, Sam Jones put the finishing touches to the political dynasty of the late Huey P. Long, as he was formally elected governor of that state. He takes office May 14.

¶ And also in Louisiana, another successful political candidate, Guy Calire, made the headlines for he was the first Republican to defeat a Democrat for a local office in that state since shortly after the Civil war. He was elected to the St. James parish police jury—county commissioner.

¶ Sold Mrs. Martha Taft, campaigning for husband Robert A. in his drive for the Republican presidential nomination, "It's time to get over thinking the Constitution will defend us and get out and defend the Constitution."

¶ Another wife of a "presidential possibility," while not campaigning for friend husband, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, said in a speech at Battle Creek, Mich., "By staying out of war we (the United States) may be the one torch of hope in the world."

POULTRY RESEARCH SEEKS CONSTANTLY TO IMPROVE CHICK STARTING RATIOS

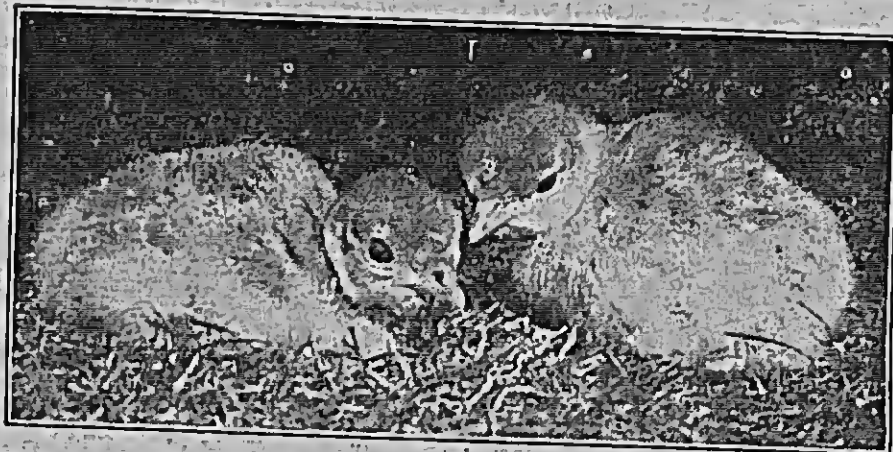

Looking down one of the brooder house sections at the Purina Experimental Farm. Here are shown 2000 chicks testing feed ingredient combinations. In all, 40,000 chicks are raised in Purina experimental pens each year in an effort to improve Purina's all-mash starter for baby chicks.

Men who scale mountains are always looking for the hardest one to climb and old Shiprock, a massive granite rising heavenward from New Mexico plains, was one of the hardest of all to scale. Such progress—twelve feet a day! But finally Shiprock was conquered and the men who conquered it looked down upon the peace and the quiet of the Navajo country and wrote their names at the top of one of the hardest jobs of mountain scaling in this country.

And what is true in mountain climbing is also true in nutritional research. A few years ago it was thought that no longer could improvement be made in starting masses of baby chicks. But quietly Purina scientists in their research laboratory and at the Experimental Farm kept at the job of ever improving their starting mash for baby chicks.

"CONSIDER THE SOURCE WHEN BUYING YOUR POULTS," SAYS TURKEY RAISING AUTHORITY

One point under a brooder looks little different from another point! But could we lift the curtain for just a minute and take a look into that poult's future, then take a backward look into it? past, we would quickly realize that the backward look had a great deal to do with the look we took ahead. In the quality of that poult rest many things—most important its profit or loss!

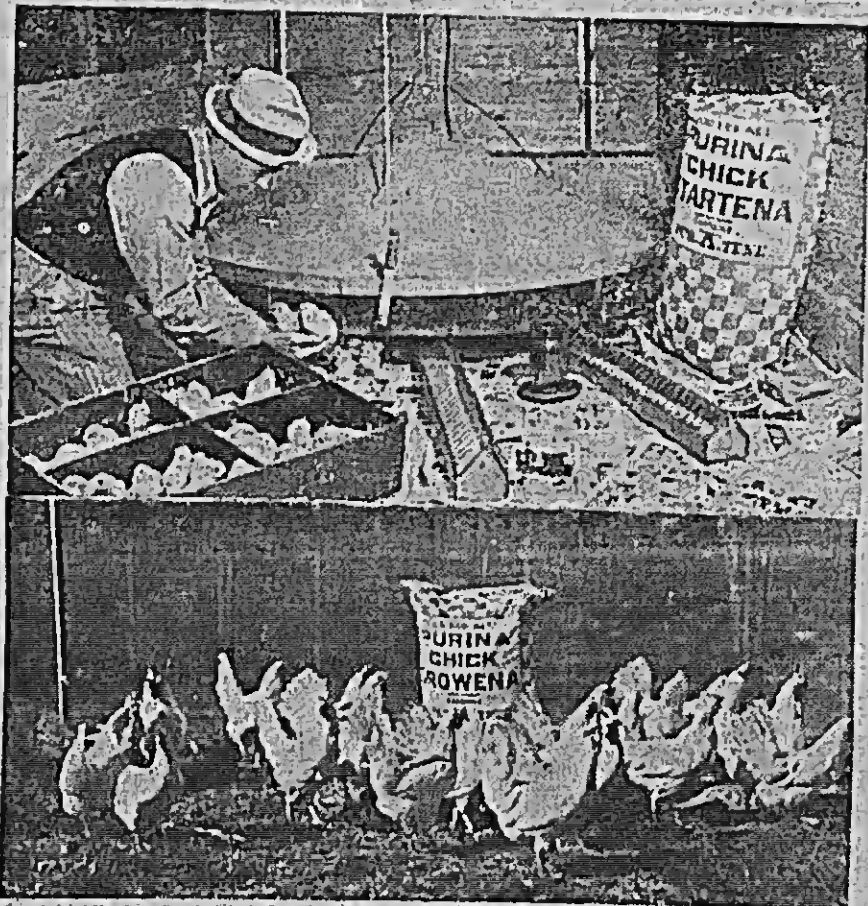

O. P. Plaisance, head of the Turkey Department of Purina Mills, and a large grower of turkeys himself, enumerates a number of things that determine whether poulters make a profit or a loss. According to him, poulters should be from parent stock that is true to type and has the right body conformation.

Consider the Source
And that's not all. He feels that poulters should come from good, healthy, thrifty stock that has been blood-tested for pullorum and typhoid. Early maturing and early feathering ancestors are among his recommendations. "Most important of all," says Plaisance, "the poulters must have been embryo-fed." In explanation, Plaisance says embryo-fed poulters are poulters that received proper nourishment while still in the egg. "The turkey hen can only put into that egg the materials which she receives in feed. It isn't sufficient to give her just the correct amount of protein, carbohydrates and fats. She must also receive," says Plaisance, "the right kind and proportion of protein, the essential vitamins for vigorous embryo-growth within her eggs, and the correct mineral supply. Even such rare elements as manganese must be included to avoid some of the leg troubles that occur in poulters."

Special Breeder Ration
Plaisance recommends that a special breeder ration be fed to the turkey breeder flock that will help turkey hens to lay eggs in quantity lay eggs that will hatch, and lay eggs that will hatch out strong, vigorous poulters. Such a ration, he says, could only be developed through much experimental work with turkeys. He claims that at their Purina Experimental Farm just such a ration has been developed, and that it is now available from all local dealers handling checkerboard feeds.

CHICKS TO LAYERS IN 20 WEEKS

A familiar sight on local farms these days is the upper picture. Thousands of baby chicks are going into local brooder houses now, with the hope of having thousands of strong, husky layers about five months from now. This is not too much to expect, according to our local Purina feed dealer. To each 100 chicks he recommends that 200 pounds of Purina Chick Starter be fed. This is an all-mash starter built especially for the first few weeks of a chick's life, that comes in checkerboard bags. After the 200 pounds of Chick Starter have been eaten, he recommends that chicks be switched to Purina Grower, an all-mash growing ration. He claims this growing mash will continue during the growing period the fine job done by Chick Starter during the starting period—even though the cost per ton is lower.

Days of Hickory Corners Post Office Are Recalled

Memories of the days in which Mrs. Jennie Pickles, for whom funeral services were held last Monday, was postmistress at Hickory Corners were recalled in a visit made by Col. and Mrs. L. J. Sloum of Harvard this past Monday.

The Sloums called on Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Thompson, with whom Mrs. Pickles resided in the home at Hickory Corners.

The south-east room of the home on Highway 173, the first house east of Highway 45 on the north side of the road, will be remembered by many older residents as the one that was utilized for the post office over which Mrs. Pickles presided from 1900 to around 1910. When rural delivery was established the use of the post office was discontinued. Col. Sloum was one of the early mail carriers of this region.

Mrs. Pickles' death occurred a week after funeral services were held for her sister, Mrs. Ellen Stokes, who died suddenly in Chicago.
